This weekend we celebrate Trinity Sunday. The passages in the New Testament that bear testimony to the divinity of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit reveal the early worship and proclamation of the early Church. Until the third century the 'three' of the divine Triad in church life and theology was referred to concretely as 'the Father', 'the Son', 'the Holy Ghost'. As yet there was no generic term for the three. In the third century this changed with Origen in the east (Eastern Church – Greek) and Tertullian and Hippolytus in the west (Western Church – Latin). Tertullian is known to have first used the word trinitas to explain the unity of God's inner life and the economy of salvation history. This divine Mystery is revealed in Christ and celebrated in the Eucharist and all sacraments.
